

In-home and on-site
health data collections

Where and when you need it

ExamOne has you covered. From large-scale group health events to individual mobile screenings, ExamOne's robust collection network has you covered. ExamOne can support health and care management companies across the care continuum by providing actionable health data through collections, screenings and assessment services.

Our mobile phlebotomist network is the largest of its kind in the industry, which gives you a broad reach to complete mobile health screening needs at an individual's home or workplace. We can also conduct collections at more than 200 paramedical service centers across the country.

NATIONAL NETWORK

More than 7,000 mobile examiners

200 nurse practitioners

Staff at our 200 regional offices

Clients and individuals are ensured a quality experience when ExamOne manages your specimen and diagnostic data collection needs because patients and members receive high-quality exams performed by healthcare professionals. The information collected at the individual's home, workplace or one of our paramedical service centers is quality-controlled and expedited to the laboratory for testing. Shipments to third-party laboratories can also be accommodated if needed.

A personal extension of your program

“My examiner was excellent at the biometric collection and blood draw portion of exam — very professional and caring, a true professional. I highly recommend her and she represents your company well. She is a 10 on a scale of 1 to 10.”

We know our healthcare professionals are vital to the success of any collection program. Sometimes they may be the only representative of your company to the employee or patient. That is why we've built a team that is committed to providing your members with excellent care and customer service.

To ensure this quality, we maintain a rigorous training program that is tracked and measured consistently.

A Quest Diagnostics Company

ExamOne can support health and care management companies across the country by providing actionable health data through collections, screenings and assessment services.

Technology drives quality

Technological edge – Our custom client-focused system seamlessly manages events from order entry to data delivery and communicates status effortlessly with our partners, clients and health professionals.

In the field and beyond – We ensure a consistent experience and timely delivery in the field with system-driven checks and balances, as well as accurate reporting.

Nationwide coverage

Mobile phlebotomy collections – Let our experienced staff be your team in the field for mobile collections for third-party partners, including specialty laboratories, care management companies, wellness providers and research organizations.

Health screening and examination services – When you need more than a basic specimen collection, ExamOne can support insurance carriers and health management companies with screening and assessment services to individuals or in group settings.

More than 7,000 healthcare professionals – We can staff your national programs with our expansive network of mobile phlebotomists.

People who make a difference

Single point of contact – Your program receives individualized attention with customer-centric solutions delivered and managed by a team of professionals while providing a “single touch” approach to client management.

Dedicated team members – At the home office and in the field, our team strives to provide our partners and their clients our brand of superior customer service.

For more information about ExamOne’s mobile phlebotomy and health data collection services, visit ExamOne.com/Health.